Leo Esaki

(Former President of the University of Tsukuba)
(Nobel laureate in Physics)

University of Tsukuba Alumni Association was established in January 2017 and consists of graduates of University of Tsukuba as well as current students, faculty, and university staff. The association was established with the intent to foster lifelong communication among its members, regardless of generation or study field differences, resulting in bonds of friendship that improve one's experience of life. Various initiatives are being implemented to encourage meaningful interactions among members and to achieve richer outcomes for all involved. Through University of Tsukuba Alumni Association, we hope to see vibrant exchanges across generations and the strengthening of connections for collaborative activities.

We warmly invite you to join us and look forward to your participation.

In the era of a 100-year lifespan, universities are about to change from being places in which people only spend a short period of their lives to places where people can continue learning, studying, and supporting each other throughout their lives. I hope that all of you will use this association to remain connected with the university throughout your lives and continually update your knowledge, renew your aspirations, and enrich your lives.

Kyosuke Nagata,
President,
University of Tsukuba
